IN CASE OF FIRE CALL THE BUTLER AND EAR INFIRMARY

And if that Personage Does Not The Indebtedness Now Is Happen to Be in the House, Why, Get a Messenger Boy to Hunt Him Up.

MEANTIME LET IT BLAZE.

Butler Gave Up His Shave and Got Busy in the Nick of Time.

The French maid of Mr. and Mrs Moses Hopkins, of No. 1 East Fiftysixth street, smelt smoke in the upper part of the handsome Hopkins home today, and cried excitedly for her mistress. Mrs. Hopkins has always made it a point never to be ruffled at anything. She calmly directed the maid to get the butler.

"The butler, he is not to be found," was the maid's report, after having tripped from stair to stair all over the house. By this time the smoke had grown really offensive.

Where is he?" asked Mrs. Hopkins. "Oh, madame, madame, he is having his face shaved, and oh, madame, I do not know where the place is."

A careful inquiry brought out the fact that the butler, proud of his English birth and smooth face, patronized a barbirth and smooth face, patronized a barber shop on Sixth avenue. Call a messenger boy at once and notify the butler that the house is on fire," ordered Mrs. Hopkins. This was down the chimney and the fire kept get ting more and more serious.

When the butler received the message he was partly shaved. The lather had been removed from his right cheek He realized the import of the situation instanter and without waiting for the barber to complete his operations grabbed a towei, wiped what soap he could from his fine smug face and made a bee line for the home of his employ-bee line for the home of his employment.

"The house's burning up!" was the first cry of alarm that greeted him at the door-step.

"Why don't you put it out?" shouted the butler.

"For you we have been waiting," said the French maid.

The butler went to work at once. Trailing behind him was a corps of servants, all more or less speechless with fear. The smoke had now penetrated the entrire house.

The butler proved himself more than a major domo. He judged the situation off hand. "If it's a fire," he said to himself, "the best thing to do is to get the firemen. I read in the mapers, that they are brave men who perform their work well." With that he broke the box and sent off the private alarm.

In a very few minutes a part of the Fire Department had arrived on the scene. The fire was due to a congested fine and a roaring fire in the grate. The blaze was quickly put out. There was no appreciable damage, and the butler returned to the barber shop, where his shave was finished. The fire delayed him an hour in his day's work.

NEWPORT HARBOR FROZEN.

NEWPORT, R. I., Feb. 11.-The entire inner harbor is closed by ice to-day and navigation is suspended. For the first time since the torpedo-station was established, the water in the main running from here to the station froze during the night, necessitating a shutdown of the smokeless powder and guncotton factories to-day.

George Gordon Battle, who turned the tables on Germain by getting a writ in behalf of Mrs. Germain, directing Germain to produce little Eugene in court. Said this was all fudge and fustian, and anyway, the Chicago court had awarded ed the child to his mother and the father has been indicted in Chicago for kidnapping him, and was captured here and is held for extradition.

The little boy was brought to court by an attache of St. Mary's Home where he was placed by his father. His father held him on his knee in court, but the mother did not approach him. Justice Davis said he would send them all to Mr. Nealls, who will take their testimony and report to him.

Meantime the boy will be in charge of the Children's Society, and Mr. Germain may be admitted to bail in $1,000.
